

THE TAO FLOWS EVERYWHERE

*the tao flows everywhere; it can go left or right.
all beings depend on it to be born, and it does not reject them.*
— lao-tzu

today, ene hasiberria, today is the day you give life. real life, life that stains, that dirties its worlds with all kinds of phlegm, semen and smegma, shameless secretions and the vilest of biles, the kind that drives a man to ferment everything that grows, distill it and then build spaceships to raise flags where no wind ever blows.

your sorkariak must eat and then breed.

assemble what you know: approach, step, eat if proximity is smaller than 2, breed 3 cells if memory is greater than 50. after instruction breed, inside the conditional, step 100 times.

look at your creatures go. this is the primal gang-bang where every newborn cell may be a mutant, most often degenerate but sometimes better off than others of its
kin. isn't life grand?

the pure, original race is condemned, standing no chance against the waves of the perverted and vile, sovereign and oblivious to their creator's grand design, forever evolving, always dirtier, forever alive and new.

cells are living creatures that eat, breed and are born, mutating and evolving. (I:1)

newborn cells may have mutated. mutations consist in a gene being added, deleted or modified. (III:2)

most mutated cells are not viable and quickly die. (III:3)

probability that a cell mutates at birth: 20% (VII:9)

live: be born, eat*, breed*, die*.*
